Research shows many parents and caregivers don't feel they have enough information about school-leaver opportunities to support students to make career decisions.

COVID-19's hugely changed the job market, and 16 – 24 year olds know it. Now, more than ever, young people are open to going for jobs they wouldn't have thought about before; making it our role to encourage them at every step.

Come and join us for our Careers Conversations to hear from our graduates, apprentices and recruiters as they lift the lid on their experiences; giving you the insights you need to start the careers conversation yourselves.
